ressed his yearow and throat.

"A saucer of milk?" dublouly echoed the man behind the counter. "What do you want it in a saucer for?"

"Mee-you!" responded the young-je fellow. At least that is what the folks in the eat-shop thought he responded. Somebody or something certainly said with the country and the pout that.

"Silent Be, It Was the Cat." "It's my cat," he explained. "What cat?" asked the man behind "He's in here," said the man, looking down at his blouse, and then the cat was out of the bag. Inside his blouse he had a cat ,all right, a quite good-sized feline, now "mee-yowing" vigor- rigg "Gimme a saucer o' milk, and I'll take him outside and feed him," continued the man, earnestly.

The man behind the counter looken at the young fellow, then he listened to the hungry "mee-yows," then he silently dipped a sancer full of milk and handed it to the owner of the cat. The fellow took the milk without a word of thanks, and he and his entombed cat and the sancer of milk disappeared out the door together.

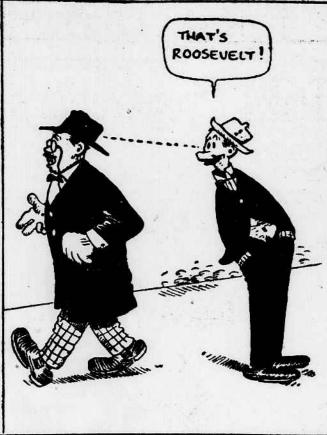

About ten minutes later the restaurant man looked out the door anxiously. The man and his cat were gone, and so was the milk—but the sancer was still there.

Austrian Prisoners on East Front.

LONDON. June 6.—The Russians con tinue their smashing drive against the Austrians on the eastern battle front and, according to official advices, are making progress. It is estimated that the Russians in their new offensive campaign on the southwestern battle front are opposed by forces numbering be-tween 600,000 and 650,000. The line between the Priepet marshes and the Rumanian border is more than 250 miles

"In the development of the engagement our artillery destroyed successive enemy shelter works, enabling our infantry to capture enemy positions. In the course of the fighting our brave commanders, Col. Lourie was killed and Col. Vontsigled was seriously wounded."

According to a dispatch filed - in Vienna Sunday the Russians began heavy artillery actions over a large part of the front that morning. There were signs of impending infantry attacks The announcement follows: sarabian and northeastern front. The artillery fire was especially violent on the Dniester and Lower Strips, norththe Dniester and Lower Stripa, north-west of Tarnopol and in Volhynia. A sector twenty-five kilometers long near Olyka, held by the army of Colonel General Archduke Joseph Ferdinand, was under the Russian gunfire. "The Russians made an attack with gas on the Dniester, but did no dam-age to the Austro-Hungarian forces. Everywhere there are signs of impend-ing infantry attacks."

Nervous Period= ical Headaches

This trouble, commonly called "sick headache," is said to be due to the retention of urea in the system. Often it is stated that a poor condition of the blood is a cause of these headaches, or that it is a nervous condition; and in certain cases, no doubt,
this is true.

Where treatment is demanded it is more for the pain than anything else, and Dr. A.
P. Schellsehmidt of Louisville has found antikamnia tablets to give prompt and satisfactory relief. "Rest should be insisted upon,"
he says, "and the patient should go to bed, darken the room, and all the attendants and family should be as quiet as possible. An emetic will sometimes shorten the attack.
The bowels should be kept open with 'Actoids'; a hot bath and a thorough rubdown with a coarse towel often give grateful relief. Two anti-kamnia tablets when the first signs appear will usually prevent the attack. During an attack one tablet every hour or two will shorten the attack and relieve the usual nausea and vomiting." These tablets may be obtained at all druggists'.
Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for nervous headaches, neuralgia and all pains.—Advertisement.

Last night's audience found additional cause for mirth; the audience tonight will doubtless find more, and by the close of the week the collaboration of author and comedian will have reached a stage, that will leave no doubt of the effect upon any grouch which the metropolis may have to put the play to the test as a blues dispeller and as the best of all good medicines—a hearty-laugh-provoker.

Mistaken identity is the basis of the plot, aithough it is the mistaken identity of a bit of "baggage," as the American calls it, rathen, than that of persons. The farce hero takes, another man's suit case, handbag, or call it what you will, just as the other fellow leaps overboard, and in consequence, when her "awakens," for he has been imbibing deeply to drown disappointed love, he finds himself with the other man's fortune and flance on his hands and ultimately a charge of murder, which is chappilly dispelled by the victim, who makes his appearance and shows real gratitude for all that has gene before. Bessie Warren did well, both as Mrs. Hawkins, boarding house keeper and 'tid bit' retailer, and as old Mrs. Hepsiban Putnam, who, to quote her rediculously grotesque and pathetic Samantly (Maud Hull), was "just put on airth to worry people," and who accommodatingly died in time to give Linda Putnam (Mary Alden), as rich as "Creasers," and yet the poorest of all the girls in the village because of her unhappy surroundings, a chance to marry her, lover—played by Charles D. Hiram Maxwell, otherwise Eugene Desmond, whose sole ambition is to get Mandy Skinner and three square meals a day, ate and laughed his way successfully from start to finish, and the Mandy of Marguerite Allen was aschirpy as a bird on a bough. Elizabeth Berger was girlishly pretty as Huldy Mason, and the romantic philanderings of Mrs. Crowley (Bonnie Vance) and Abner Stiles (Harold Kennedy) was one of the hits of the play. Howard Lang's study of an "almighty selfish creature," was in artistic keeping with his usual work, and other types were interpreted excellently by Charles Andre, Cecti Bowser, Guy Harager and Walter Webber, who completed the lengthy and capable cast. Of course, the chief feature of the events revolving around the coming of young Sawyer is his marriage to the blind girl, who happily regains her sight.
